

Active Monitoring

Do your employees work in high-risk or remote locations? Are there senior executives that warrant extra care when away? Active Monitoring combines background tracking with support from security specialists, so that you can rely on the right response when needed.

High-Risk Environments

What will you do if a senior executive goes missing on a business trip? How will you react if a team does not arrive at your remote location when expected?

These are questions companies face when considering the balance between risk and reward, as they expand into new territories. Without thorough preparation getting to the answer can be a stressful and resource intensive experience.

Prevention and Reassurance

You already brief your travellers and track their travel plans. Reaching them with a smartphone app that allows them to confirm their location improves your confidence in their whereabouts and thus ability to act.

With the right plans and preparation in place, you can complement what you already have. This will minimise the chances of things going wrong, whilst responsibly reassuring your employees.

Situation Aware

Active Monitoring provides you with location based tracking technology naturally integrated with itinerary based tracking. This means that you will know where your employees are and where they are going.

It delivers a choice of measures appropriate to the risk of the destination and the privacy concerns of employees.

As needed, our security specialists manage the monitoring and reactive tasks on your behalf. This approach optimises the use of your resources whilst ensuring that you are always in the loop.
